

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An area-light source outputs uniform area light on a sample. A wedge diaphragm is placed between the area-light source and the sample. The wedge diaphragm has a notch. The wedge diaphragm
5 is moved in a direction perpendicular to the optical axis of the area light so as to adjust an amount of the area light passing through the sample.